

King County Board of Health

Origin:

The King County Board of Health has authority to protect and promote the health of King County residents as outlined in RCW 70.05.060. The role of the Board is to advocate for the preservation, promotion, and protection of public health, prevent the spread of disease, set local public health regulations and some fees and licenses, and enforce state and local public health laws.

In 2021, the Washington State Legislature passed House Bill 1152¹ (HB 1152) which required four primary changes to the local boards of health:

1. There must be an equal number of elected to nonelected members;
2. One nonelected member must be selected by the American Indian Health Commission (AIHC);
3. The remaining nonelected members must be recruited and selected by the KC Board from the following three categories: Public health, health care facilities, and providers; consumers of public health; and other community stakeholders; and
4. The nonelected members would have voting power on all matters except those pertaining to setting or modifying permit, licensing, and application fees.

In April 2022, King County Council passed King County Ordinance codifying these changes.

Board Responsibilities:

- Supervises the health of King County residents by voicing and advocating priorities for protection of public health.
- Collaborates with the Public Health Director and Health Officer to set an annual work plan which creates opportunities for action within the limits of the Board's workload and legal authority; and
- May enact local rules and regulations as necessary in order to preserve, promote and improve the public health and authorize for the enforcement thereof.
- Ensures a racial equity approach to policy making.

Member responsibilities include, but are not limited to:

- Attending and participating in monthly meetings held on the third Thursdays of each month at 1pm.
- Nonelected members shall have the ability to vote except on legislation pertaining to fees.
- Participation in subcommittees as needed.
