

King County Assessor Moving to King Street Center

Effective May 10, the King County Assessor's office will be moving from the King County Administration Building to the 7th floor of the King Street Center Building:

Department of Assessments
King Street Center
201 S. Jackson St., Room 708
Seattle, WA 98104

The department will continue to work on a virtual basis, with no in person customer service, during the Covid-19 public health emergency. Once public health conditions allow, a customer service location will open in the King Street Center. Look for our updated messaging regarding our new customer service center in future months.

Beginning on Wednesday, May 5th, until close of business Monday, May 10, our telephone and email systems will be down sporadically while we move. You will still be able to access our website during the move. We ask for your patience during this time of transition. Thank you.

You can still reach us via phone (you can leave us a voicemail), on-line (you can send us an email), or via our drop-box, and through the regular mail:

- To access virtual services, you can email the Assessor's Office at info.assessor@kingcounty.gov, call 206-296-7300, or visit www.kingcounty.gov/depts/assessor.
- You can apply online for property tax exemptions at taxrelief.kingcounty.gov. Or call 206-296-3920.
- The drop-box located outside the King County Administration Building will be relocated to a location outside the King Street Center.
- If you have a complex issue that requires a meeting with our staff, call or email to set up an appointment.
