

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS RELATED TO SUSPENSION AND REINSTATEMENT OF DRIVING PRIVILEGES
DUE TO DRUG OR ALCOHOL VIOLATIONS

Q: When does a license suspension for drug and alcohol violations happen?

A: If a juvenile between the ages of 13 and 18 is found by a court to have committed a drug or alcohol violation under Title 66 of the RCW (Revised Code of Washington), the court notifies the DOL (Department of Licensing) of the judgment. The same is true when a juvenile signs a diversion agreement for a drug or alcohol violation.

Q: What information will I receive related to the suspension?

A: When DOL receives notice from the court that you have been found to have violated the law as described above, DOL revokes your driving privileges. When DOL revokes your driving privileges, it sends a letter informing you:

- 1) that your driving privileges have been revoked
- 2) the date the revocation became official
- 3) the date the revocation will expire
- 4) the date at which you are eligible to apply to the court for reinstatement and
- 5) the steps that you will have to take after reinstatement to get a valid license

Q: How long do suspensions last?

A: For a first violation, suspension lasts for 1 year or until your 17th birthday, whichever comes later. For any later violation, suspensions last for two years or until your 18th birthday, whichever comes later.

Q: When am I eligible to have my driving privileges reinstated?

A: If this is your first violation, you are eligible to ask for reinstatement 90 days after the court found you guilty (or you signed a diversion agreement) or 90 days after your 16th birthday whichever is later. If this is your second violation, you are eligible to ask for reinstatement a year after the court found you guilty (or you signed a diversion agreement) or on your 17th birthday whichever is later.

Q: What if I drive during the period when my privileges have been suspended?

A: It is a crime to drive without a license. When your privileges are suspended, you don't have a valid license.
